Regulatory Specialist (indeterminate)
Yellowknife, Northwest Territories

The Tlicho People have strong, traditional ties to the land, water, and wildlife, so ensuring responsible use of land and water for the benefit of Tlicho People is of paramount importance. The Wek'èezhìi Land and Water Board is an affirmative action employer. Land claim beneficiaries are strongly encouraged to apply.

The Regulatory Specialist is responsible for coordinating submissions made to the Board, managing public reviews, conducting environmental impact assessments, liaising with government, industry, First Nations, and other stakeholders, managing various projects, and carrying out technical reviews.

If you have communication and environmental and/or technical experience and are interested in joining a high-performing team in a fast-paced, progressive, and dynamic environment, we encourage you to apply.

The successful applicant will have relevant education and demonstrate the following competencies in their cover letter and resume:

- strong critical thinking, organized reasoning, and technical writing ability;
- be team oriented and have effective oral communication skills;
- strong project- and time-management skills; and
- a high level of cultural and self awareness.

The starting salary for this position ranges from $92,304 to $117,197 per year plus a comprehensive benefits package that includes over $20,000 per year in allowances. Interested candidates should submit their cover letter and resume by Sunday, April 2, 2023 to:
